EquiTrend CEO Elected President of Active Investment Management Association

Boise, Idaho, May 3, 2006 – EquiTrend.com, a leading investment information service offered to self-directed retail investors, announced today that its CEO and President John McClure was elected president of The National Association of Active Investment Managers (NAAIM) for 2006-2007.

NAAIM is a professional organization of registered investment advisers who use active money management to produce favorable risk-adjusted returns.

“I’m honored to serve NAAIM as its new president,” Mr. McClure said. “Its own activity aligns with its mission of providing active managers a forum to exchange ideas and best practices. The association helps us stay current on important issues like trading strategies, compliance, legal, back office administration, practice management and business development.”

Continued McClure, “The strength of NAAIM is in serving the common interests of its membership and the open dialogue between members throughout the year.”

About EquiTrend.com

Substantially outperforming the market since its inception, subscription-based EquiTrend.com provides self-directed retail investors with buy/sell signals, incisive market commentary, and weekly performance updates across different investment strategies. EquiTrend.com investment models are geared specifically toward equity indexes, exchange-traded funds, and a select group of actively managed mutual funds.
